Defense Pact.

17. Type of alliance as coded in COW data (if applicable): Defense Pact.

18. Describe the obligations of the alliance partners.

The Courts of Austria, Prussia and Russia acknowledge that all independent sovereigns have the right to request assistance, for internal troubles as well as external dangers, from another independent sovereign who seems to be most ready to assist and that the latter has the right to grant or refuse assistance, according to his interests and convenience. They also acknowledge that in the case that assistance is granted, any power not invoked or called upon by the threatened state, does not have the right to intervene, be it to prevent the requested and accorded assistance, or to act against it (Art.I).

In the case that material assistance of one of the three Courts, Austria, Prussia or Russia, has been requested and another power wants to oppose itself through the use of force, the three Courts consider each hostile act directed against each of them. They will take all the quickest and most effective measures to repel this aggression (Art.II).

19. Are any of the obligations contingent upon any of the following: specific adversary, specific location, specific ongoing conflict, number of adversaries, noncompliance with a specific demand, attack, nonprovocation of enemy, or prior agreement among partners? (List all that apply)

Yes. Prior agreement.

20. Describe the nature of the limits to obligations listed in #19.

The allies will only come to each others' aid if this is requested by the threatened party. Only if aid has been promised by one ally and this ally is opposed by another state through the use of force will all allies become active. (Note the difference between Art.I and Art.II: Art.I says that, when requested, an ally may help or may refuse to help. Art.II says that if a power attacks the ally that is giving help to then all allies will react. There does not seem to be room for refusal to grant assistance in these circumstances).
